VOICE OF THE KNIGHTS

Volume 59

Wartburg College, Waverly, Iowa, Saturday, September 25, 1965

Number 3

What's this world coming to? Wartburg women with cigars! Actually they're just giving their reaction to a brand name which has a special meaning this Homecoming.

Inside Senate

Rain Affects Senators

By SUE KELL

Cornflakes and Wartburg have one thing in common. They both have been relatively soggy in recent weeks. Rainitis has affected most students. One feels gray, damp, lacking the usual Wartburg spirit.

Student senators seemed to be afflicted with "rainitis" at the Sept. 20 meeting. Discussion and reaction were unusually slow and the meeting dragged somewhat.

A volunteer was needed to do some investigating on a matter to be voted on at the next meeting. Senate response was silence. One brave senator asked what the task involved but didn't volunteer. Since time waits for no man, not even senators, the matter was dropped.

Outfly Date Is Discussed

Kell

Did you think Outfly flew a little early this year? Lu Ahrens, sophomore class president, told the senate, "Others and myself feel that Outfly came too early this year. Could there be a different ending for Squire Days?"

"The spontaneity of Outfly was ruined," Harold Blobaum contended. "In the past three years I haven't seen an Outfly that was spontaneous."

Marg Freeland, traditions chairman, asked, "Who determines Outfly? The sophomores could decide some night two or three weeks after school begins. Maybe all the freshmen could be in the gym and only a few would know about it."

The problem of keeping the Outfly date a secret was mentioned throughout the discussion. In the past many students and faculty members knew when "Ausflug" would be via the campus grapevine.

Lalrd Yock suggested, "Squire Days could end at the first home game."

To Be Painted On Local Mountain?

An older tradition, tossing beanies at football games, was connected with a possible new tradition of whitewashing W on the mall. Jim Lubben caused laughter with an unconscious slip of the tongue.

He suggested the freshmen get up early on the morning of the first game and whitewash a W on the "mountain," the frosh would toss their beanies at the first touchdown or at the end of the game, becoming "knights."

Bill Hamm, student body president, commented that the frosh would have to get up very early to walk to the nearest Iowa "mountain." (May I suggest a certain hill in Decorah?)

This was one of livelier portions of the meeting, but it was decided more "brainstorming" sessions were necessary before action could be considered.

Want to know where the "student action" is? (Attend a meeting of the Student Action Commission, Dave Wegenast, commissioner.)

Cafeteria Committee To Report

Don't gripe to your roommate about the food (unless he or she is a member of the Cafeteria Committee). This committee will meet weekly and report to the student body via the Trumpet or publication of the minutes. Cindy Cummings, a sophomore from Waukegan, Ill., was elected chairman. Students are well represented on the committee.

It was announced that about 250 books were sold through the senate book sale held during the past two weeks. According to Bill Hamm, the sale was a success. Over four hundred books were handled, altogether.

Everyone loves a happy ending. (act III, scene IV) A voice from the back of the room asked quietly, "Do you still need a volunteer?"

In the chatter following adjournment one senator suggested, "Maybe we should send a resolution to God about this weather." All in favor? See YOU at the next senate meeting.

Homecoming Variety Show Theme Will Feature Campus 40 Years Ago

"40 or so Ago" will be the theme of this year's Kastle Kapers production, to be presented on the Friday night of Homecoming weekend.

Junior Allen Lyndrup is in charge of the program, which will take the audience back to the Wartburg campus 40 years ago, during the Roaring 20's.

"We are taking some liberties with history," said Lyndrup. He added that some of the main characters in the musical variety show might not have any historical background, but their antics will add a semblance of plot to the production.

Try-outs for the show were held last week and casting has been completed. Rehearsals will start Monday night.

Music for the show will be provided by two pianos, drums and a banjo. Lyndrup reports that there will be lots of singing and dancing in addition to several sketches.

Coronation of the Homecoming

Queen will take place at the end of the show. A bonfire and pep rally on the practice field will follow Kapers.

A movie is now scheduled for Sunday evening of that weekend. A special feature of candid campus movies will be shown along with the scheduled film.

NSYA And ACP Give '65 Fortress Excellent Rating

The 1965 Fortress has been awarded an "A" by the National School Yearbook Association and a "First Class" by the Associated Collegiate Press, according to word received here this week. "Excellent" is the interpretation of both scores.

"The 1965 Fortress is an excellent yearbook," wrote the NSYA judge. "Its copy, both graphic and factual, is particularly outstanding."

The ACP judge summed up her critique: "I enjoyed examining this well-designed book. . ."

Marvin Ackerman, senior, was editor of the 1965 Fortress, and Linda Morse, junior, served as associate editor.

Certificates for framing came from both critical services.

Convo Features Miller, Stanley

Is man sufficiently mature to accept world government or has his experience proved it to be an impractical ideal? This is the question being examined in the current convocation block on "World Order," according to convocations co-ordinator, Chaplain H. W. Diers.

This week will feature U. S. Senator Jack Miller (Rep., Ia.) and Dr. C. Maxwell Stanley, president of the United World Federalists, as convo speakers.

Senator Miller is to speak on "National Sovereignty in the World Tomorrow" on Tuesday. Thursday's convo topic is "Nationalism vs. World Order" by Dr. Stanley.

Wartburg Seminary To Host Lutheran Student Conference

"Faith and the Other America" is the general theme of the sixth annual American Lutheran Church Student Conference to be held at Wartburg Seminary in Dubuque, Nov. 25 - 27.

The theme will serve as impetus for discussions and dialogue around a double focal point, the first being the problems of poverty, and the other, the "dynamics for social renewal," with both points being related to the three great American faiths -- Protestant, Jewish, Roman Catholic.

Representative speakers from the three faiths have been engaged for the conference. Dr. Richard Luecke, formerly the Missouri Synod campus pastor at Princeton and now head of the Urban Training Center in Chicago, will be the Protestant speaker.

Catholic Ecumenist To Speak

Father Coleman Barry, president of St. John's College in Collegeville, Minn., a renowned Catholic ecumenist and historian in his own right, is the second of the trio of speakers.

A nationally known representative of Judaism from Chicago, Rabbi Arthur Gilbert, will present the Jewish point of view concerning the two-pronged thrust.

Coming with Rabbi Gilbert from Chicago and participating in the conference will be 12 Jewish college students, as well as 12 Roman Catholic college students and seminarians from Dubuque institutions.

Over two hundred students from the American Lutheran Church's 12 senior colleges, three seminary branches and a nursing school are expected to participate in this Thanksgiving vacation conference.

Youth Department Adviser

The A.L.C. department of Youth Activity serves as adviser to the conference, with a representative co-ordinator from each school working in conjunction with the Wartburg Seminary conference committee headed by co-ordinator Phil Goldbeck.

Senior Ron Nelson serves as co-ordinator for Wartburg College.

more Will Reents, junior Al Lyndrup and seniors Roger Baumgardner and Dennis Egge.

Wartburg Band has added twenty-eight new members this year. Freshman members are Mark Becker, Marilyn Borchardt, John Butterbaugh, Chris Filler, Ruth Jane Gerdes, Bonnie Hahn, Kathy Harnening, Darlene Isaak, Steve Kohls.

Cost Boom Hits Wartburg

Boy, am I glad I'm a senior! Pity the poor freshmen who will be coming back for three more years and meeting increased tuition and costs each year.

Five years ago it cost only a grand total of $1,050 to spend a year at Wartburg. Now it's $1,504. Outrageous? Maybe not.

In the long run, you're getting a good deal by going to Wartburg. First, there's a good liberal arts education. Although there is no actual listing of colleges as to academic rank, Wartburg is considered one of the top Iowa colleges.

And then there is accreditation. Wartburg possesses an impressive list of accreditations. Probably the most important of these is North Central Association's, which was secured back in 1948.

Wartburg Has Benefits

Wartburg can give you the same benefits as any other small private college. There are church affiliation, sports, drama, music and almost anything else you can name.

Unfortunately, to grow and to become better, costs must rise. And that is what Wartburg is doing -- increasing enrollment, building better facilities...

Yet Wartburg remains relatively inexpensive. Following is a comparative chart of enrollment and costs for the 1964 - 1965 school year:

The Poison Pen

Chuckling Days Are Over

By LINDA STULL

I used to chuckle a few times when I went to a basketball game and one of the athletes there lost a contact lens. Pretty soon the whole team, resembling a religious sect which suddenly remembered it was time for a service, was prostrate on the gym floor trying to find it.

But my chuckling days are over. The same thing happened to me not so long ago, only instead of an entire squad to help search for it, I had just one innocent friend, who is still wondering why he had to be the one to offer me a ride to the Pub House.

Stull

After an exciting ride through the Little Theater Rut and down a portion of the Waverly Super Highway, I arrived at my destination -- that marvel of modern-day architecture, the Pub House.

I was almost ready to enter the sacred portals of that building, but before I had a chance to open the door of the car, I realized that the reason the Pub House looked especially good to me was because my vision was partially obscured by the loss of a contact lens.

The friend who had offered me the ride was naturally delighted at this piece of news. He saw his reputation ruined and his studying held to a minimum for the next two days, which is exactly what happened.

We drove back to Vollmer Hall to get a flashlight and spent the rest of the evening in the parking lot searching for the contact lens -- (well, it beats some of the excuses I've heard for spending the evening parked in the Vollmer ramp).

Naturally, it was Outfly, and it wasn't long before people started returning from their day of frolic. Most of the people who walked past the car muttered a few words about the abominable morals on the campus as they saw these two people crawling around on the floor of the car.

Some brave souls (their courage probably heightened by the effects of a traditional Outfly), ventured to ask us what we were doing. Thus, we were able to tell them that we were searching for a lost contact lens (for once I could offer a good excuse).

Well, we sort of got the idea that they didn't believe us. People kept going past all the time, and it was getting pretty dark, so we abandoned the search for the evening and resumed it the next day.

By this time we had decided that it must be under the front seat of the car. So we thought it might be a good idea to take the front seat out and look -- but we didn't know how to take the front seat out.

This necessitated a trip to the local car dealer, who was naturally rather inquisitive about our reasons for removing the front seat. We explained that we were looking for a contact lens. It is not pleasant to hear a car dealer chuckle and ask you how you lost the item in question. But he did tell us how to remove the front seat, all the while giving me amused glances.

Well, to make a long story short, we never did find the lens. But you should have seen the looks we got when we started dismantling the front seat of the car in the Vollmer parking lot that afternoon.

Extended Boundaries Aid In 'World Come Of Age'

By GARY SWEDBERG

Perhaps man's ability to foresee future situations would end "worldly lines." But then man has failed for many centuries to unite as one and live in harmony as a single group under the leadership of a major institution.

The United Nations, the Geneva talks on disarmament, wars and many other "attempts" by man have failed to bring about the peaceful coalition of man into a peaceful era of time.

Man Lives With Problems

Man has existed in a pressure-laden world; his life has evolved around the strife and problems the world presents. And these problems are what draws man within his boundary (or dotted lines) of security.

Yet man exists within these lines as an individual, afraid, not of his own kind of ideals, but rather of what the "other side" has to offer his group.

Man Fears Change

In a definite sense, man is afraid to open his mind to the "other world." He sees himself, not as a product of his environment, but as a man whose ideals cannot be exposed to change, or even a remote chance of compromise.

But yet there is a personal feeling that can be had by opposite factions.

Suddenly they discover themselves "thrown" together as victims of circumstances. They discover themselves to be much alike in many ways--thus a feeling of kinship.

Return To Dotted Line

All else has become background, and their personal lives have inter-twined. After a period of time, they suddenly realize what is developing between them. Embarrassed, they return to the "old dotted line" of thought.

But friendship, to a remote degree, has been felt by both sides of opposite thoughts. As long as the individuals remain within their own boundaries of ideals, this is the only way "friendship" can exist. A vicious circle, isn't it? "The Hat"--a convo film on international relations.

'Question Changes Life'; Abraham Comes To U.S.

"Indian students are eager for education. There are very few dropouts. Education is ended usually only because of financial conditions," said Yohannan Abraham, foreign student from India.

Coming to Wartburg from Kerala, India, via Austin Junior College, Austin, Minn., Abraham is a junior, majoring in business administration-economics with a possible second major in French.

He became interested in studying in the United States while he was with an American couple on a tour of Bombay, where he worked following his high school graduation.

Life Changed By Millers

While Yohannan and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Miller, Austin, Minn.,

were eating lunch, they were talking about the United States.

"We were waiting for our food to come, when suddenly Mr. Miller asked me, 'How would you like to study in the United States?'"

These were the words that have changed his entire life.

Previous to meeting the Millers, Abraham was employed in Bombay, working for two large foreign companies. He later worked as a secretary in a Christian mission financial headquarters in Bombay. His employer at this mission introduced him to the Millers.

Experiences Follow

Since that time his life has been one new experience after another. In 1962 he flew to New York and then on to Austin. While attending school there, he also worked at the Weyerhaeuser Company. He lived with the Miller family during his two-year stay.

He became interested in Wartburg College through one of his instructors at Austin Junior College, Gary Poorman. Poorman is a native of Waverly and an alumnus of Wartburg.

After graduating from Wartburg, Yohannan plans to return to India and go into labor and welfare work.

"The need is great for educated people to aid in the improving of the welfare of the Indian people," he said.

Ignorance Displayed

Commenting on the U. S. concept of the Indian country, Abraham feels that most people are ignorant about his country.

"They all ask about our sacred cows, a belief peculiar to the Hindu faith. They think India is a jungle, a primitive land of sacred cows," he added.

"Progress in India has been great in the past years, although it has been hindered by conflicts with Pakistan," he said.

According to Yohannan, education is also progressing.

"Indian women are educated and attend schools. They have the same freedoms as the men do," he said in closing.

The Somewhat Straight Stuff

Kashmir Is Problem

By L. ALBERT SAGERT

To find and understand the origins of the present Kashmir problem, it would probably be necessary to retrace India's history for the past three thousand years. The roots of the problem might be said to exist in the diversity which was taking shape in India so many generations ago.

Today, India is a land of 480 million widely different people. This subcontinent contains six distinct ethnic groups, seven major religions and around 850 dialects. Added to this is a division (which goes back to the time of the Aryan migrations) between the northern Hindu-Aryans and the southern Dravidics.

This mass of population, of conflicting ideas and ideals and of rife division has been developing since before the Buddha, and it is rather doubtful that we will soon be able to stem it. But what we are concerned with is its by-products.

The Kashmir issue itself has now been brewing for 18 years. The independence of India in 1947 gave the Moslem minority a chance to express its self-will by forming the country of Pakistan against Gandhi's wishes. Kashmir's maharajah was then given the opportunity to choose which nation he wanted his predominantly Moslem people to belong to.

Before this choice was made, however, Pakistani troops threatened his capital and he called in India. After this came fighting, armistice, a cease-fire line and more fighting, along with plans for a much discussed Kashmiri plebiscite.

As a result of these developments, each side feels its case is supported by a legal claim. The latest incident in the struggle, a charge by India of Pakistani guerrilla activities, has precipitated the present fighting.

Now, it seems that there should be some good and worthwhile basis for such a continuous conflict. Kashmir itself is not worth that much for farmland or mineral deposits, and it seems that its Moslem population would be a problem rather than a blessing when permanently united with India's Hindus. Thus, the basis would seem to be not one of material gain but one of pride on the part of both sides.

In India, each of those groups that I mentioned earlier has self-pride: the Brahmin, the Aryan, the Hindu, the Moslem, the Christian, the Shiva worshipper, the Buddhist, the Sikh. This pride creates conflict which we must admit is not as strong as in previous years, but it also seems to transcend the local and become national.

Because of this nationalistic pride, the possession of Kashmir has become a prestige or status symbol for both Indian and Pakistani. Unfortunately, India is in a difficult position for realizing her ambition. Pakistan has signed a common defense treaty with Red China so that fighting with one means double trouble. Red China is able to capitalize greatly on this by just talking and not really putting herself out too much militarily.

India's bind is severe and almost uniquely insoluble. She cannot overcome her diversity, which would partly solve her problem of pride and allow her to give up Kashmir graciously, nor can she afford to lose her pride, for she has little else to sustain her at present.

Thus, India is forced to walk proudly through international criticism to her grave. Her one consolation is that Pakistan may join her shortly after she arrives.

And China? She who breathes fire sits by laughing.

Yohannan Abraham, foreign student from India, makes good use of the library facilities.

Mrs. Bachman Enjoys Wartburg; Sums Up First Year In Waverly

"A most enjoyable and satisfying year--a very interesting and worthwhile venture." This is how Mrs. Bachman sums up her first year at Wartburg.

Mrs. Bachman said that her most important function as the wife of Wartburg's president was entertaining and becoming acquainted with the college's faculty and students, and also acting as hostess to the many visitors who come to the campus.

In addition to her official duties, Mrs. Bachman is actively involved in the Waverly Women's Club, a book club originated by the Wartburg faculty wives, and she is on the executive committee of the Waverly Human Relations Association.

Dr. and Mrs. Bachman were both born and raised in Columbus, Ohio, where she took a general liberal arts course at Capital University. After their marriage, Mrs. Bachman worked for a time as a secretary of the church where her husband was the assistant minister.

The Bachmans have two sons, Charles, a first-year student at Luther Seminary, and John, a senior at Waverly - Shell Rock High School.

They have lived in several widely varied locations, including a year spent in London while Dr. Bachman was on a sabbatical leave. Before coming to Wartburg, the Bachmans lived in New York, where Dr. Bachman taught at Union Theological Seminary.

Mrs. Bachman found the transition from New York to Waverly

"not so different," she says, "because here, as in New York, I have been able to meet, entertain, and get to know the individual students and faculty, which I enjoy so much."

Mrs. John W. Bachman enjoys entertaining and meeting both faculty and individual students.

Jaco Falls; Holt 1st Knight Finisher

By GARY VENZKE
"I expected to finish third, but Steve Jaco fell in a sink hole." Candidly commenting in this fashion was freshman Rod Holt, Wartburg's leading finisher in the cross-country meet with Dubuque last Saturday. Rod placed second in Wartburg's initial outing.
"Jaco was lucky he didn't get his beard dirty," Rod concluded. Holt hails from Schofield, Wis., where he attended a high school of about 800. At D. C. Everest High, Rod accumulated four track letters and three letters in cross-country.

Coach Is Alumnus
Rod's high school cross-country coach's being a Wartburg alumnus was a major factor in steering him toward Wartburg. Comparing his first tastes of inter-collegiate competition with his memories of high school, Rod remarked that the course was longer, and the training was much more strenuous.
Training with the team five days a week and participating in meets on Saturdays, Rod spends his "off day" on Sunday running seven or eight miles on his own to relax!

Holt Plans On Coaching
Holt foresees his future in a high school, coaching track, cross-country and volleyball. He is a biology major with a minor in physical education. His chief aspiration concerning college is to run all four years at Wartburg.
Rod's reaction to things scholastic up to this point is: "It seems strange to sit down to four hours of homework every night, besides during the day." Rod is one of the peculiar breed residing in North Hall.

"North Hall is more like a fraternity house than a dormitory," Rod confided with a mischievous grin. "I'd rather live there than anywhere else."
Rod Meets North Hall
In connection with this, Rod tells a story about his first encounter with North Hall. It seems that he, being a newcomer to the campus, unknowingly approached the depleted wooden structure in his parents' automobile inquiring the whereabouts of this North Hall.

About this time a second floor eavesdropper interjected, "This is it and don't knock it!" Rod thought this quite a typical sentiment as he became acquainted with that institution and the men who comprise it.
Fishing and hunting occupy Holt's interests when he's not running. Shooting ducks is a special favorite -- whether it be with a shotgun or a 35 mm. For you see, Rod left a photography lab in the basement of his home behind him when he moved into North Hall.

Rod Holt, top Knight finisher at Dubuque, warms up before a cross-country practice session.

Ketha Leads Intramural Teams; Trounces Clinton III 52-0 Victory

Opening games of the intramural season were played last Tuesday. Co-chairmen John Mantey and Dennis Rubenow are to be commended for their effort in getting the program organized at such an early date.
Rules of the flag football games are a bit different from the sport as played by the varsity. Each game consists of 60 plays with 30 in each half.
Tackles are made by removing a plastic flag attached to the player's belt. Rules forbid a blocker to leave the ground to cut down on the number of injuries.
Mantey Picks Winners
John Mantey, head of the fall program, predicted the winners of the I-M league. He picks Alpha-Married Men-Cotta to top the standings followed by Ketha, the annual favorite. Vollmer-Gamma is rated third with the surprising Grossmann I - Basement fourth.
Mantey confirmed the earlier statement about the playoff game. Each team in the league will send representatives to a meeting to pick an all-star club. No team will be allowed to vote for members of his own team.
This composite group will meet the I-M champions in a playoff contest. This game will be held on Nov. 2 or 4.
In the action thus far Ketha is on top, having won both games.

Grossmann I - Basement posted one victory and a tie.
Ketha had an easy time of it as it trounced Clinton III 52-0. Denny Bowman's passing, Walt Bueening's running and 8 interceptions were the story. Bueening had three touchdowns; John Hearn, two; and Arlyn Krueger and Tom Wilson, one each for the victors.
Grossmann I took the measure of the Off-campus-Beta team, 13-7. Doug Hart and Rich Bringewatt scored for G-1. The losers scored their touchdown on a pass. Off-campus had one touchdown called back because the receiver failed to report in.
Thursday, G - I and Vollmer-Gamma played to a 6 - 6 tie. Rich Bringewatt and John Mantey scored for Grossmann and Vollmer respectively.
Clinton I beat Grossmann III 13-7. Palmer Clements caught two passes for Clinton's scores. Ray Narducy tallied for the losers.

Harriers Win First Two; Swamp Dubuque, Simpson

John Kurtt's harriers romped to an easy win over the University of Dubuque Saturday.
Knights won the meet 20 to 39, low score winning. This was the season opener for both teams.
On this humid morning the Spartans' Jim Pysanczin copped first place on the rain-soaked, three-mile course. He returned in a time of 17:49.
Knights swept the next five places to secure the victory. Freshmen Rod Holt and Steve Jaco led the Wartburg attack, placing second and third, respectively.

Wartburg took a five way tie for first place in the harrier meet here Friday afternoon. The Knights put down Simpson convincingly 15-50, low score winning.
Gaylen Flick, Jon Thieman, Mike Hughes, Rod Holt, and Bruce Kettner all crossed the finish line simultaneously. In the last mile and one-half of the race the Knight runners held a conference as they sped along.
It was decided that all of the front runners would cross the line together.
Sixth place was also captured by the Knights as Roger Stufflebeam held the position.

Dubuque Defeats Wartburg In Opening Defensive Duel

By ED ROACH

Wartburg dropped its season opener to Dubuque last Saturday 7 to 0. The game was characterized by strong defensive performances by both teams on Dubuque's Chalmers Field.

Football mentor Lee Bondhus remarked about the game: "I was disappointed in the loss, but I felt certain individuals did well."

Keith Kephart scored the only tally of the game. He raced around left end for 67 yards as the Knight linebackers collided.

Wartburg's safety nearly caught Kephart near the goal line, but the shifty Spartan back slipped out of his grasp.

Dubuque's kick for the extra point was good. The game's scoring was concluded with 1:01 left in the first quarter.

Rainfall Is 1½ Inches

Fans and players alike were dismayed by the second period. One and one-half inches of rain fell before half-time.

Defense was the Wartburg bright spot in the game. Dubuque got only 5 yards in 19 carries into the center of the Knight line. Bondhus gave much of the credit to linebackers Ron Mennen and Bill Harken for the stout defense.

Wartburg's pass - rush disappointed Bondhus. In the first half Spartan quarterback, Paul Krause, was seemingly impervious to the Knights' rush.

This aspect of the game improved in the second half, but adjustments have been made for the Augustana game.

Interception Stops Drive

Defensive backs had good coverage in spite of the saturated turf. A pass interception in the end zone stopped the most threatening of the Spartan drives.

Discounting the touchdown scamper and another 49 - yard run by Kephart on an identical play, the Knights held Dubuque to 86 yards in 64 plays.

Wartburg's offense was able to gain only 86 yards for the day. Bondhus attributes this to the fact that the ground was too wet for the backs to cut behind their blocks.

Knights Unable To Move

Knights were never able to sustain a drive until the closing minutes of the game. Spark for the march was supplied by short passes from Roger Kittleson. Unfortunately, the effort died near the Spartan 35 - yard line as a Dubuque defensive back intercepted a pass.

Knight quarterbacks were thrown for losses several times as they dropped back to pass. This week the passing procedure will be changed to allow a faster release of the pass.

Bondhus named freshmen Lance Dreesman and Herb Iberg as offensive standouts.

Praise was given by Bondhus for the continued spirit shown by his players in the Dubuque contest. The team was out to win even in its last play with one second left.

Augustana will provide tough competition for the Knights in this afternoon's game. Last week Augustana ran over a strong Concordia team 17 to 7. Concordia had boasted a seven and one record for the previous season and had its team return intact.

Vikings are a razzle - dazzle aggregation. They like to use a lot of handoffs and pitchouts. They have also shown a fondness for the passing attack.

Ball-Handling Causes Fumbles

This type of flashy action is not without a price. Last Saturday they fumbled six times in the backfield because of their ball-handling.

Augustana does not match the size of Wartburg, but this is compensated for by superior team speed. The Vikings use approximately the same offensive configuration as Dubuque. This will mean that the ends will be split on most plays.

Last Week's Statistics

Rushing Yardage	29	135
Passing Yardage	57	84
Passes	8-19	8-20

Nobody Asked Me, But . . .

Look Ma, A Good Team!

By BILL GLITZ

A funny thing happened to the Wartburg Knights on the way to the 1965 football season. They became a football team. At least that's the way it looked last Saturday.

Oh, sure, the Knights lost; and they didn't exactly set any offensive records. But they weren't annihilated, and Dubuque will annihilate someone this year. The Knights fought 'em to a standstill.

The name of the game was "smash" for Wartburg last Saturday. There were no chants of "Hit 'em again, Hit 'em again. Harder. Harder," from the Wartburg side. Once was enough.

Dubuque had five men playing in the backfield most of the afternoon. One of them was Ron Mennen. They've got a guy named Dozier Jones, who has a reputation like Ulysses around Dubuque. Mennen made him look like Little Orphan Annie.

Gayle Newlon played as if he had a personal grudge against the Spartans' quarterback Paul Krause. Krause spent most of the afternoon checking the sky for more rain -- from a prone position. Newlon usually was the man responsible for this.

Eldon Werkheiser, Dubuque fullback, is supposed to be one of the biggest the Knights will see all year. After he got hit by the middle of the line twice he was ready for the rest of his football from an easy chair in front of the TV. One almost had to pity Werkheiser as he continually dragged himself back to the Dubuque huddle, looking so longingly at the Dubuque bench.

Wartburg's defense was superlative 99 per cent of the time. Unfortunately, the one per cent of ineptness cost the Knights the ball game.

Offensively, the Knights did not look the equal of their defense. True, the rain hampered them. Still, the best word that I can think of which described the Wartburg offense is plodding. The Knights are going to have to pick up their yardage in small, patient, meticulous amounts of sod this year. There's no lightning in the backfield. In fact, there's hardly enough speed for a small flicker.

Roger Kittleson and Dick Basham probably have nightmares about the receivers that they have to throw to this year. The best of the whole lot can't be seen. Trying to pick out Lynn Altemeier in the secondary is like looking for the sun lately. Maybe Coach Bondhus could get him a different colored helmet.

Even though the offense will plod, Bondhus has these guys in the frame of mind so that what has not succeeded the first time with the ball, will be tried and tried again. The Knights will keep coming at their opponents this year. What they lack in explosiveness they make up for in guttiness. And eventually the job will get done.

--0--

Just a small comment on a tough break both personally for Lyle Wind and for Wartburg football fortunes. Lyle broke his arm on the third play of the game last Saturday. There was nobody on that football team that wanted to play more this year than did Wind. Wind with his arm in a cast is like either Caruso or Coach Menage without a voice. He will be sorely missed. Already Lyle has started working out on his own so that he will be in shape when he gets the doctor's o.k. Let's hope along with Lyle that it's soon.

As far as Pigskin Prognostications go -- forget it.

Knight Fullback Lauds Defense, Forecasts Wartburg Conquest

By JACK EDEN

"We should've beaten Dubuque last week." These words came from Jim Renning, senior fullback for the Knights' football squad. "The defense was really tough, but perhaps the offense could have been better."

Renning graduated from Waverly - Shell Rock High School, where he had an impressive sports career. He lettered two years in football, three years in basketball and four years in baseball.

"As for today's game against Augustana, we should win," the red-headed fullback continued. "They finished with a good record last year. We should've beaten them then, and chances are we will today."

Jim Is Quiet Sort

Jim is a quiet sort of fellow who seems to dislike talking. He is active in outdoor sports, a member of "W" Club and president of the P. E. Club. He also plays left field for the Oppie-men in the spring. As if this isn't enough to keep him busy, he's married, too.

Renning feels that Luther has come down in power a lot from last year, but still refrains from making a prediction as to the outcome of the game.

Spirit Is Better

"However, the spirit of the team is much better," he commented. "They seem to be behind the coaches instead of against them. The defense is the strong part of the team. I don't think there is a better linebacker than Ron Mennen in the league."

If the offense is the weak point of the football team, Jim seems to be doing what he can to strengthen it. In last week's game he piled up more than one-third of the Knights' ground yardage.

Renning will graduate this June and plans to teach for a few years before going on to graduate school.

Senior fullback Jim Renning prepares for Wartburg's home-opener with Augustana this afternoon.

White Man Is Black In Griffin's Book

By ANNETTE BENSON

A white man, John Howard Griffin, traveled through four Southern states -- Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia -- as a white-man-turned-black via pills and ultraviolet rays.

As a white man, he was well-educated, well-dressed. As a Negro, he was a menial laborer.

"We're gradually weeding niggers. . . out. . . Jobs they (niggers) can get are the ones no white man would have."

This is one result of the great misconception white men have concerning Negroes. Negroes are thought to be mentally inferior to white men.

Dogs Put In Place

Griffin found this embedded in the minds of bus drivers who wouldn't let him off the bus at a comfort stop. The driver didn't feel he was being inhuman but just making a dog know his place -- beneath his master.

Then there was the typical white who picked up Negro hitchhikers. He always wanted to know if Griffin had ever had an affair with a white woman.

Negro Blood Improved

Despite Griffin's declaration of his love for and devotion to his wife, the white man chuckled evilly. This man was always the one who'd contributed to ("helped better") the Negro race by putting some of his white blood into it.

Finally, there were the masses who ostracized the Negro for trying to succeed and, at the same time, condemned him for living in squalor.

Education would have given and will give a working foundation for improvement. However, Negroes were naturally stupid and were getting as much out of education as they ever could hope to obtain.

Security Lies In Darkness

Griffin wrote, "I learned. . . when it is dark, the Negro feels safest." And yet, he could escape. He could be SUPREME WHITE again while the Negroes continued to feel the torment he had felt.

Not only "hate stares" but being verbally raped of all dignity caused him to cry himself to sleep.

He was on an assignment for "Sepia" magazine. He was always ready to reveal the truth to anyone. No one asked. His skin was black; that was enough.

Understanding Sought

Griffin began his adventure when he, as a Southern White, sought to understand the Negro and his position in American society.

After four weeks of "blackness," Griffin felt compassion for the Negro and doubted the existence of goodness in Southern Whites. His four-state diary, "Black Like Me," gives insight that is a must for everyone. After reading it, you'll doubt too. . .

"Is it 'Black Like Me' with the 'Me' referring to Griffin's trials as a Negro? Or is 'Me' a white man, causing those trials? Who is 'blacker'?"

Students Sound Off

Do you think that Wartburg students would benefit from a 4-1-4 plan allowing for independent study?

By MARY HJERMSTAD

Catherine Carroll - Junior

"I think that a program of independent study is a good idea. It allows a person to study and concentrate on something that really interests him."

"The subject of study would not necessarily be part of the student's major, but would add to his knowledge."

"A friend of mine participating in such a program chose Major Women of the World as a topic, and studied famous queens and personalities."

Dave Zellmer - Senior

"From what I've heard, independent study is a good idea, but only works for those who really want to work during the month allowed for it."

"I don't think it would be practical for a whole system, but it might work for individuals."

Kathlene Kriesel - Junior

"It would depend upon the student. A month of study would help students who are interested in subjects connected with their major fields.

"Most students are not introduced to their major fields until their junior and senior years -- this would give them an advance opportunity to become acquainted with these fields."

Duane Gerstenberger - Soph.

"I'm in favor of it. Many schools already have such a program, but Wartburg should not adopt it for this reason alone. I think that a new program like this should be given a Gerstenberger trial before it is adopted."
